++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Very cold with some snow showers mainly in coastal areas.

Today:
A cold day but most places fine and dry with some sunshine and lighter winds than recent days. A few sleet and snow showers in the northeast. Cloudier with light sleet and snow at times in southwest.

Tonight:
Cloudy in far west and southwest with strong winds and coastal gales possible. Less cold than recently here. Cold but mostly dry elsewhere though more snow showers for east Scotland.

Friday:
Snow showers continuing for east Scotland. Mostly dry and fine elsewhere but still cold. Cloudier in the west and southwest with a little sleet and snow possible later.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain and snow for some western areas Saturday, heaviest for Northern Ireland. Further rain and snow spreads east Sunday, with milder weather slowly following for the start of next week.
